[ad] - Trend Micro and WinPatrol are here to help; they've resolved the common online problem of the redirect away from the site. They can help protect you from rogue sites trying to steal your identity, your computer resources, or your data. But Trend Micro and WinPatrol have a significant weakness when it comes to detection of potentially unwanted programs (PUPs). This weakness is known as the "window into the soul" flaw and it lets unscrupulous online merchants assume your credit card and other personal information. The WinPatrol and Trend Micro websites all too often use this flaw to sell additional software and services that are not needed and that could actually create security issues. The top search results are also plagued by rogue websites that lure visitors to trackers, exploit flaws and install malware. All this is done without the visitor's knowledge. It is important that we protect our online identities, computers and data as much as we can, because it would be a shame to find that we have been the victim of identity theft or credit card fraud. Trend Micro and WinPatrol cannot afford to be ignorant of their ignorance. It could be many years before their company's ingenuity and profits bring their websites in line with their customers' best interest. What is DMP? As mentioned earlier, Trend Micro and WinPatrol are doing a good job in helping to protect users from rogue websites that gather personal information from unsuspecting visitors. Search engine exposure can cause a serious problem for a business. It can also be costly and time-consuming to fully clean up the search engines and remove all traces of rogue websites. This is where some serious help can come in. The good guys like Trend Micro and WinPatrol are ready to help.
